

September energy update

Want and need

As we enter into the beginning of September 2009 we find ourselves at the gateway of another dimension (that gateway being officially opened on 09:09:2009), poised to raise our consciousness once again, this time in preparation of 2010 which is set to be a year of dramatic change. This is where we get to find the wise teacher within and access our own authentic being, the time for guru's is over, the time for teachers is coming to an end, and we are entering into the period of real personal empowerment. Whilst there will always be front runners, we are entering into a time of equal partnership meaning that there will be less separation (if any at all) between student and teacher, master and pupil. September is giving us an opportunity to discern the difference between what we want and what we need. It is our Higher Self that knows what we need, and our ego that knows what we want. The distinction between the two is becoming clearer and we find that what we thought we wanted is no longer as desirable, life seems to be opening up to other avenues and possibilities that seem surprisingly desirable right now, and just what we need. More to follow in the next update ...
